Governor Robb recently recognized Natural Resources Conservation Week which was October 14-20, 1984. The week was sponsored by the Virginia Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts (VASWCD) and the Robert E. Lee Soil and Water Conservation District.

The aim of the special week, which carried the theme "50 Years of Soil and Water Conservation," was to educate adult groups, school children and the public about limited natural resources.

Chairperson of the VASWCD Education and Youth Committee Daphen Jamison said emphasis of the week was placed on telling people about the history of soil conservation in the state and our dependency on these resources of survival. "Conserving and protecting natural resources, such as soil and water, is a never ending battle. We've been fighting for 50 years but that is only a beginning. There is no absolute victory in conservation."

Success, failures of homes is extensive

By WILLIAM L. TRIMYER

HEAVEN HELP THE HOME!

Lesson for October 28, 1984

Bible Study Passages: Ephesians 5:21-6:4

INTRODUCTION

There is hardly a human institution that shares as wide a range of success and failure as the home. Home can be heaven or it can be hell. Many people are crying out against the forces that are threatening the stability of family life. There are many complex problems that are changing the shape of the "American family." Some of these problems include mobility, the two family paycheck family, leisure time activities, the sexual revolution, and the changes that are taking place in family roles.

We have noticed how the divorce rate has skyrocketed over the past twenty years. It is easy to get married in our society and even easier to get unmarried. Staying married seems to be tough for many couples. Divorce becomes an easy option to escape an unpleasant relationship. There are several million children who are living with only one parent. It is no wonder that the home needs help from heaven and earth!

One of the great problem areas within family life is the lack of communication. We are probably exhausted from hearing that accusation. The truth is, however, that communication is an often missing ingredient in family life. Few families play or pray together! Few families have a good network for communication of personal problems. When children cannot take their questions to their parents and receive a satisfactory answer they will easily become discouraged with life. Trust is such an important ingredient in family relationships.

Applying the biblical principles of repentance, confession, and blessing within family life can strengthen and save the family from becoming a disaster. Family members do sin against one another. We must learn to humble ourselves and repent of our sins, confessing them to one another and living together in a spirit of forgiveness. We must also learn to affirm and bless one another within the family. One of the greatest gifts we can give to a family member is to affirm them.

PAUL ON HUSBANDS AND WIVES [Eph. 5:21-24]

Paul wrote to men and women who were used to living within a pagan culture. He was concerned over the lack of standards and their continuing exposure to the immoral conditions of that pagan culture. The city of Ephesus was especially unkind to women. They were treated as inferior and possessed few rights. To be a woman was to be a second class citizen. Such an attitude still prevails in some segments of our society. Especially within religious circles women are often overlooked. Our traditional methods of biblical interpretation keeps women out of certain ministries, especially if those ministries require ordination.

When men and women embraced the Christian faith they discovered a radically different environment. They found that Christ looked upon men and women as equal within the fellowship. Paul encouraged women to voluntarily respect their husbands upon spiritual grounds. Paul did not mean that women were to adopt a servant relationship to their husbands.

But Paul also had a clear message for husbands. Ephesians 5:25-33, when read clearly, reveal Paul's affirmation of women rather than a put down, as some of us want to believe. Paul's greatest concern was that a man should love his wife as "Christ also loved the church."

Paul further encouraged husbands and wives to practice reverence toward one another. This was to be done out of reverence for Christ. When we love and honor Christ in our life we will naturally love and honor those within our family. We do not exist within the family to have our needs met, but we are to strive to meet the needs of our spouse and our children.

PARENTS AND CHILDREN [Eph. 6:1-4]

Paul did not commit the sin of overlooking children. In his letter to the Ephesian Christians he had something special to say to the children and their parents. When children honor their parents it means they are to take them seriously. Paul refers back to the fifth commandment to show that showing honor to one's parents would produce life-long blessing. Honoring parents, however, is not a one-sided coin. Parents likewise have an obligation not to provoke their children into disobedience through unreasonable demands.

Parents have a big responsibility to raise their children in a spiritual climate within the home. Too many parents leave it to the church to provide for their children's spiritual needs. But unless a child experiences the love of God through their parents they may not necessarily find it elsewhere.

Respond to the following questions:

1. What problems do you see facing your family today?

2. How do traditional views of women harm the marriage relationship?

3. How do you respond to this statement? "CHILDREN NEED TO KNOW WHAT THE BOUNDARIES ARE."

Catholic church news

"I was in prison and you came to visit me." Matthew 25:36

These words of scripture have come to have greater significance to several members of the catholic community of Our Lady of Peace Church in Appomattox.

Since April a group of 8-10 from Appomattox have made regular visits to Buckingham Correctional Unit near Dillwyn. The group brings the Liturgy of the word of God and Eucharist to a gathering of about a dozen inmates. The pastor and laymen and laywoman have an opportunity at each unit to witness how God is working in their lives.

"We have received several comments asking why we bother visiting the prison. The remarks generally suggest that they deserve their present condition and we shouldn't visit," says the Rev. Richard Kirch, the pastor. "I suppose it is easy to have this view until you talk face to face with men who realize the wrong done and are seeking God, seeking a way to repent. If someone can help this process and if we can occasionally be that someone then we must continue," he said.

On Thursday Oct. 18, as an outgrowth of the visits of the local church, Catholic Bishop Walter F Sullivan visited the Buckingham prison. "The catholic group is very small, about 15, but they were very excited about a visit from the Bishop" said Ron Steinkamp, parish member. In recent national publications Bishop Sullivan has been characterized as a pastor very sensitive to the needs of those imprisoned and he commended the local Catholic Church for this ministry in Buckingham.

The local Catholic Church is located just off Route 24 past the Historical Park entrance on Route 627. Sunday Mass is at 11:30 a.m.

Hospital SurgiCare. Only the name is new.

Outpatient surgery saves— everything from fractured ankles to skin cancers to problem ears. Not to mention time and expense.

At Lynchburg General, we've been doing outpatient surgery since June of 1976. We call patients the night before to answer any questions. We have them in and out of the operating room within the day. And we make sure no one leaves without knowing exactly what to expect from their surgery.

Some 500 people had outpatient surgery at Lynchburg General back in 1976. Last year, we saw almost three times that many patients.

You see, eight years ago, we identified outpatient surgery as the future of medicine. Today, we've found a name for that vision. Hospital SurgiCare.

Ask your physician for information.
